

Glacier Bear LLC

There is no other person that I would want leading me into the Alaskan Wilderness than Brian White. Brian's vast knowledge of Alaska comes from countless trips when he has led people into the Wilds of the last frontier. He has been on eighteen different expeditions each consisting of 15 days in the woods. These expeditions were to Alaska, the Arctic Northwest Territories and the Yukon. Eight of those trips were sea-kayaking in Glacier Bay. Brian is a very competent and reliable guide that can give you the safest and most memorable trip to Alaska that you could ever imagine.

— Michael Czarnecki, Mass Maritime

Dolly Varden trout, Nunatak Cove

Kayaking & Backcountry Expeditions

GLACIER BAY, ALASKA

Brian White is a naturalist and wilderness guide. He is a veteran of 18 trips to the Alaska Wilderness, a hiker of 400 miles of the Pacific Crest Trail and a certified summit of Mt. Rainier ice climbing school in Washington State. He has led student groups sea kayaking in Glacier Bay National Park, Alaska for the past four years. He led them through the Beardsley Islands and Muir

Brian White

Inlet for 120 miles in ten days. Featured were grizzly sightings, as well as humpback whales and orcas. All of his trips were well acclaimed by all of his clients. They had the adventure of a lifetime and felt safe at all times.

No experience necessary!

Brian White

glacierbear57@fairpoint.net

207-697-2171 or

978-317-5812

INSURED AND WILDERNESS CERTIFIED

Leaving Beardsley Islands, heading for Adams Inlet

Kayaking....

Glacier Bear LLC

In the summer of 2010, I had the good fortune to accompany Brian on a trip to Glacier Bay National Park. That trip was the most incredible vacation I have ever taken and was truly a life altering experience. Since then, I have been hooked on the pursuit of remote wilderness areas, and have back-packed in some spectacular environments.

On our trip, we saw whales and porpoises, a variety of birds (including numerous bald eagles and hummingbirds). Everywhere we camped, we feasted on wild strawberries while surrounded by breathtaking views. Nowhere else have I seen an ecosystem intact.

There are very few people as capable as B-White when it comes to leading groups into Glacier Bay. Few claim to be as familiar with the Glacier Bay backcountry as Brian. Having organized several less ambitious trips myself, I am very impressed at Brian's ability to coordinate such an adventurous and enjoyable expedition; everything from the flight, to ground transportation, to kayak rentals, and ensuring that each individual was properly equipped was handled expertly.

Brian is familiar with the hazards of the park and how to avoid them, and he did an excellent job preparing each member of our group for a safe expedition.

— Alex MacLeod, Registered Nurse

Riggs Glacier, Muir Inlet

Forest Creek, Muir Inlet

My tour guide, Brian White, was especially helpful with my first encounter in Alaska's vast and beautiful terrain. He is not only experienced and knowledgeable about the rugged Alaskan wilderness, but also an amazing person to learn from. I would not have wanted to take part in this experience with anyone else besides Brian. He taught me how to love camping and appreciate the beauty of nature that surrounds us all.

— Keelyanne Hyland,
University of California, Santa Cruz